A HISTORY

OF THE

Ancient Chapel of Stretford.

VOL. II. CHAPTER I.

THE CHURCHWARDENS' ACCOUNTS.

After Mr. J. E. Bailey wrote his Old Stretford in 1878, which is largely the foundation of this History, an earlier Churchwardens' Account Book was found by the Rev. Dudley Hart amongst the effects of a late Clerk. This earlier volume begins in 1717 with "The names of all those Persons that have subscribed towards the Reising of the Bounty money to Bouy Land with for Stretford Chapel and for to Rebuld the said Chapel and Chancel a new gallery and new seates and that have payd theare said subscribcions the said moneys Collected and Disbursted By Thomas Chadwick and Thomas Moores."

The rest (filling pages 2 and 3) vary from £5 to 2*s.*, the total being £154 16*s.* 3*d.*, to which Edward Barlow added £2 "in consideration of w^ch^ sum y^e^ s^d^ Edward Barlow is to hold one Quart^r^ of y^e^ Double Pew."

On page 4 are further names and amounts, total £22 7*s.* 6*d.*, "collected and Disbursted by Tho. Chadwicke and John Shawcross Chapelwardens." On pages 5, 6 and 7, is a third list "collected by Mr. Wm. Rogers, Tho. Chadwick, and Tho. Moores" beginning "Imp'is Mrs. Ann Hinnd £100." Page 8 is blank. Page 9 is headed "May y^e^ 30^th^ 1717. moneys Layd down by Tho. Chadwicke Tho. Newton geeting subscriptions and Collecting them for Raysing the Bounty for Stretford Chapel and for other Chapel usses Tho. Chadwicke and Tho. Newton Chapelwardens." [1] Thack, thatch ; table, a horizontal moulding.

[2] Wall-plate, a piece of timber lying on the top of the wall to which the timbers or spars are attached.—(Halliwell's Dictionary of Archaic and Provincial Words.)

[3] Until the canals and railways cheapened carriage flags were largely used instead of slates for covering or roofing purposes. The word flag has since become restricted to pavement purposes. G. Sandys in 1615, in his Travels, p. 177, says: "The wals are flagged with large tables of white marble." Whiter, in 1682, in Journey in Greece, vol. ii. p. 187, says: "It is flagged also within with white marble, and paved in like manner." J. Robertson, in 1799, in Agriculture in Perth, p. 34, says: "The brown flags . . were at one period used . . in covering houses."

[4] Daub or dobe, clay or marl, also clay mixed with chopped straw, formerly used for filling in between the timbers of wooden-framed houses, sometimes called "wattle and daub."—Nodal and Milner's Lancashire Glossary. Clay and chopped straw made by placing the clay and straw upon a farm yard and then treading it with horses until it was thoroughly softened and mixed.—(Holland's Cheshire Glossary, 1886.)

[1] A fifteenth was originally a tax voted by Parliament, and amounted to a fifteenth part of the value of a man's moveable goods. It became a convenient basis for other rates required for local purposes. In those days small sums of money were quoted in Marks. A Mark was 13*s.* 4*d.*, which is the fifteenth part of Ten pounds. Even now the salary of the Constable of Lancaster Castle is assigned in Marks. Further particulars about fifteens are given in Mr. Harland's Notes on the Shuttleworth Accounts, vol. iii. (Chet. Soc., vol. xliii. pp. 610–2).

The total was £32. The other names and sums are given in detail, but nothing to distinguish or identify the individuals. A list of promises unredeemed is noted, including—

John Moss Carrier	Betty Moss widow
William Moss of the Angel	Tho. Mather Cornbrook
Richard Gooden of Gorsehill	Jno. Saxon crooked Billet
Great Ellen Moss	Mr. Harrison Attorney
James Syddal Inn-holder	Mr. Leonard Immeson Gauger

The expenditure, amounting to £46 16*s.* 0*d.*, is then set forth, and includes £1 2*s.* 6*d.* "for Dale [Deal] Plank for Doors," and mentions Mr. Barlow Clark of Eccles. Mr. Baxter notes: "When I first came to Stretford [1747] one James Shaw liv'd upon the Estate, who had agreed with Mr. Baldwin my Predecessor to pay him £19 p. ann., Leys and Taxes to be deducted, the Tenant charg'd only with ye Tax upon Windows."

The accounts of the Fowley Common property for 1748 include—

[1] The ancient basis of taxation by fifteenths based on Marks, which has been previously explained (ante p. 283 n.), is here shown to be gradually superseded by the more modern basis of valuation in pounds.

In 1762, the Estate was let to Edward Fazakerly for 7 years at £22 a year rent, leyes, taxes, and repairs to be deducted. James Shaw refused to quit, but agreed to do so if paid £1 15*s.* 4*d.* for "half of his muck" [manure] and £1 3*s.* 8*d.* for repairs done by him.

The accounts for 1762 are duly entered in the same clear hand of Mr. Baxter. They are followed by a "Memorandum. "This Book came into my Hands on Easter Munday in the "year 1767 at which time it was agreed in a Vestry Meeting "that 5L a year the Proportion of Land tax paid by the Officer "of Excise shou'd continue to be given to me as it had been to "my Predecessors. W. Stopford Minister of Stretford."

On an earlier page he noted: On August 29th, 1767, the terms of Fazakerly's tenancy the rent being reduced to £21 for the year 1768 "and for the year –69 and endways 26L. clear of all Leys Taxes (Quit Rent for the future excepted) and Repairs. Allowed 4 Acres Tillage; not to plow the meadow Ground without Leave, and myself to do my best to obtain from ['and Fellows of Manchester,' deleted] the Bishop [of Chester] and Fellows of Manchester a Lease of eleven years provided Edward sh^d require it—Little Marld Earth to penn in."

1768.	For 10 Thraves of Straw - - - -	0	6	8
	For seasoning or sessing [soaking] the straw - - - - - - -	0	0	6
	For 3 Hundred Pricks - - - -	0	1	0
	For serving Thatcher 4 days - - -	0	4	0
	For thatching 4 days - - - - -	0	6	0

The Land tax on these lands was redeemed in 1807, as appears by a Certificate which came into Mr. Clarke's hands, and is mentioned on page 78 of his MS. volume.

[1] The Oldfields of Stretford were a family of blacksmiths. The marriages of Richard in 1771 and Charles in 1777 are noted in vol. i. pp. 175, 178. William Oldfield of Stretford, smith, died March 27, 1817, aged 36, and was buried at Flixton Church. His gravestone was ornamented at the upper corners with horse-shoe and pincers, but those emblems are now quite worn away. The inscription included the well-known verse :—

My anvil and Hammer are declined,
My bellows have quite lost their wind,
My coals are done, my debt is paid,
My vices in the dust are laid.

(Lawson's History of Flixton, p. 401.)

[1] Jacob was the Christian name of some official. It recurs in later items, see text. Jacob Brundrett was Constable in 1726, Overseer of the Poor in 1735, and a Chapelwarden in 1740.

[2] They were Chapelwardens in 1745.

The Account Book contains the following memoranda :—

Excommunicated[2] 1750.

*Henry Ormond, Mary Naylor *did Penance.
Martha Clayton, Thomas Williamson & Ann his wife :
William Mason or Gratrick.
*Jane Renshaw, John Rowbotham and Patience his wife ; John Syddal and Mary his wife.

Sunday, April 16, 1758. Excommunicated.

[James Ormond and Catherine his wife, deleted.]
James Knight and Ann his wife.
Richard Buckley and Mary his wife.
*Jane Renshaw, *Mary Renshaw [and Mary Barlow, dead, deleted].
James Ormond & Catherine did Penance, and were absolv'd from y^e^ Sentence of Excommunication Oct. 28, 1759.

[1] This shows that Wm. Chadwick was rated for three items, and that there were not three persons of that name, as might have been supposed from a prior list.

[2] By 53 Geo. III. (1813), cap. 127, excommunication, except in certain cases, was to be discontinued. The commonest form of penance was standing at the church door clad in a white sheet. The cases here noted were probably for immorality, such as adultery or fornication.

On Jan. 5, 1766, Jno. Baxter, Curate of Stretford, made a memorandum in the Account Book that as William Brownhill, late tenant of John Shawcrosses Estate of Great Stone, was in arrear for his pew, it was let for Two pounds twelve shillings to John Ashton, of Cornbrook, for him and his family to sit in until that sum was repaid to him. It was paid off on April 20, 1766, by Anthony Brownhill.

Lists of Pewholders in 1767 are also set out, and mention Alice Howarth, near Lostock, and Mr. Chadwick, Wm. Ogden, James Brownhill, and Robert Filds, all of Lostock; John Owen of Four Lane Ends, James Royle of Turfmoss, William Hampson of Great Stone, Richard Hampson, Shopkeeper, R. Richardson, Turnpike, Wm. Hampson, Shoem.; Wm. Hampson, Edge.

The volume also contains a draft undated letter to the Justices asking them to prevent the Butchers of Stretford from selling during the hours of Divine Service on Sundays.

It is apparently addressed by the parson, Rev. T. Seddon (1777–1796), to the Justices by way of appeal or remonstrance against the result of some previous effort to which a mistaken motive had been attributed. It was, however, doomed to partial failure.

The Rev. Mr. Clarke, in his MS. volume, on p. 122, states: "1778–80. At this time there used to be eight or ten stalls set out for the sale of butchers' meat in Stretford on Sunday mornings. The butchers from Manchester and Eccles thus disposed of what was left on market day in those places till ten o'clock, and it is due to Mr. Seddon to state that he exerted himself to do away with this nefarious desecration of the Sabbath, and got the Magistrates to interfere so as to put a stop to it. Still pork butchers continue to receive and settle their accounts with the Irish and Welsh pig dealers on the Lord's Day."

The letter is as follows:—

Whereas [the Indulgence granted to the Butchers of selling meat at Stretford upon Sundays in the morning has been made ill use, as well been attended with several circumstances, (struck out)] Butchers have frequently abused the indulgence granted them of holding a Market at Stretford upon Sundays in the morning by standing an unreasonable time and sometimes exposing their meat to sale even after divine service has been begun, thereby occasioning a concourse of People, and the Alehouses to be much frequented, to the great offence of Strangers passing to and fro as well as of all other Christian People. It is hereby humbly recommended to the consideration of you and the rest of Majesties Justices of the Peace whether it wou'd not be expedient to totally prohibit their holding a market there for the future ; or if from a Regard to the Poor People of the Place who [in such a case, struck out] commonly receive their Wages on the Saturday Evening, and have seldom opportunity of purchasing Butcher's Meat except upon Sunday morning I [sic] shou'd be deemed necessary to continue to the Butchers the same Indulgence whether it wou'd not be proper to lay them under the following Restrictions :—

1.—To hold their market at some other Place in this neighbourhood where there are no Alehouses and some Distance from the turnpike, by which means the People wou'd not ["be induced, tempted," deleted] be under any temptation to stay spending their money and time Idly, nor any Offence geven to Travellers.

2.—To be obliged to remove their meat and standings at Nine o'clock in Summer and half Hour past nine in Winter at the farthest, and Notice to be given them of the time allowed them being expired by ringing of the Chapel Bell.

3.—If any Butcher be found exposing his Meat to sale after ["any, either of the above-mentioned" deleted] the limited time, or drinking in an Alehouse, to be prosecuted according to law and prohibited bringing meat for the future.

4.—That no Butcher be allowed to sell meat upon Sunday Morning, without previously giving in his Name to the Minister and Chapel Wardens for the time being, that in Case he shou'd offend agst any of the above-mentioned Regulations he may the more easily be detected.

It must be acknowledged that ["for want of" deleted] a market on Sunday ["morning the Poor People here wou'd be put to many inconveniences" deleted].

The intent of my Letter of Munday last I find has been quite mistaken.

It was not my Intention to prevent Kelsal having a Licence. On the Contrary I think such an Attempt altogether unjustifiable because I know of no objection agst him as a Publican Keeper of a public House.

My Intention only was to prevent another Person being injured, which I imagined might easily have been effected by laying him under an Engagement when the Licence was granted him, not ruin the custom of Jones House by letting stand empty, but if he thought proper to put it sooner than May day to leave Jones at Liberty to put in a Tenant immediately.

I did not mention this Expedient because I wou'd not seem to dictate to the Magistrates and because I thought it wou'd naturally suggest itself to them, at the same time that they wou'd be the fittest Judges of the Propriety of it.

["Whether" deleted] Perhaps I may be censured for interesting myself in an Affair tho' not unsollicited in which I was not immediately concern'd.

But however this may be my Desire is and I trust always be to do good and serve my honest Neighbours as far as my Poor Abilities, and the humble Station of Life I am in, will permit.

This Draft Letter is undated. It begins on a page opposite one on which is written January 23, 1785, but the latter part is under an entry which reads: "March 27, 1769. We, the Minister and Inhabitants of the Township of Stretford, do nominate Joshua Taylor."

It is followed by a note :—

1809. The Butchers' Market has been continued to the present time. Though several attempts had been made to suppress it, they proved ineffectual, and the Grievance remained in defiance of the Interference of two neighbouring magistrates, till Ralph Wright, Esq., of Flixton, a magistrate acting for this Division, by his activity and strong exertions, entirely put a stop to it, to the satisfaction of all well-disposed People and well-wishers of good Order and Decorum.

Dr. Elsdale also endeavoured to suppress the butchers' Sunday dealings, and an undated and unsigned paper as follows came into the hands of the Rev. Mr. Clarke, and is noted on p. 178 of his MS. vol.:—

"We, butchers of Stretford, being fully convinced that paying for our pigs on the Sabbath is very contrary both to the laws of God and man, hereby solemnly engage entirely to give up this very sinful and shameful practice ourselves, and to discourage it in others as much as lies in our power. In witness whereof we here sign our names."

Mr. Clarke has also copied p. 179 the following undated note, found amongst Dr. Elsdale's papers: "Dr Sir,—If the bull baiting at Stretford took place more than ten days ago you cannot, according to Martin's Act, now proceed. Dr Sir, yours very faithfully, Will : Sergeant. Thursday evening."

Mr. Sergeant was a Solicitor practising in Manchester. Mr. Clarke follows this up by stating that for two or three years previous to 1851 the old custom of bull baiting in Stretford had not been kept up, but in that year "an avowed Atheist of the name of Kent, who had long occupied the Bishop Blaize Inn [now the Talbot], determined that bull baiting should be revived, if only to vex the parson, being greatly irritated" by Mr. Clarke's interference and determined efforts to suppress the pandemonium called Wakes Sunday, "when down the main street would stand booths, stalls, etc., etc., and everywhere wheelbarrows and baskets of sweetmeats, with crowds of people from all parts." Mr. Clarke met the attempt by having twelve deputy constables sworn in to assist the regularly appointed Constable to keep the peace, and posted about the village placards signed by four magistrates, of whom Thos. Josh. Trafford, Esq., was one, prohibiting booths and stalls and all other modes of exposing articles for sale in the street on Wakes Sunday. His efforts were rewarded with full success during the morning of the dreaded day, but in the afternoon wheelbarrows, etc., swarmed into the village, with a vast multitude of strangers. The deputy constables were nowhere to be seen, and when at last one, William Owen, was found, he was so drunk that the noise he made, shouting and waving his truncheon, only made matters worse. Mr. Clarke was aided in his reformatory steps by Mr. George Bannister, who had till then permitted races to take place on the Turn moss meadows, and the races were in consequence held in fields near the river.

Mr. Clarke also states that a certain Mr. F., "the great leader and promoter of the Races in Eccles, Manchester, etc., having taken up his abode at Cross Street, Stretford, in 1853, determined to re-establish races at Stretford, and secured the large field immediately adjoining the river on the left side of the road leading over Crosford Bridge, but the churchwarden, Mr. Wm. Brundrit, prevented any other fields being added. Even the publicans were against the races, and as if to put an indelible stamp of disgrace upon them a man, driving home in a state of intoxication, was thrown out of his vehicle and killed. Thus ended Mr. F.'s attempt, and he has never ventured again to renew it."

SECOND VOLUME OF WARDENS' ACCOUNTS.

The second existing volume of the Churchwardens' Accounts begins in the year 1768, and the following notes respecting it are chiefly adopted from an account of it by Mr. J. E. Bailey.

The erratic spelling includes such varieties as "halmenecks," "cirplaces," "basvoyles." The Clerk was paid a shilling a year "for ringing the fifth of November," and from 1783 the bell was rung at five o'clock in the morning, at a charge of ten shillings a year.

In 1778 the Wardens spent 4*s.* for drink "at taking the Garland to Ch." The entry is elucidated by an entry in Higson's Gorton Historical Recorder, 1853, p. 110:—

> 1780. At this period the [Gorton] rush cart went out on the Friday before the first Sunday in September, perambulating the village. On that night, or Saturday morning, the rushes were "teemed" down near the chapel gates. The old ones of last year having been cleared out of the chapel the new ones were carried in, and carefully strewn in the bottoms of the pews, aisles, etc. The garlands which had adorned the rushbearing were placed in the chapel; they were suspended on staves, which were fastened to the pillars in front of the lofts [galleries], where they remained till the next anniversary. On the Sunday the morice dancers and other officials connected with the rushbearing all attended the chapel.[1]

[1] Higson's Hist. of Droylsden, 1859, p. 63, also states that the Townships of Newton, Moston, Failsworth, and Droylsden, which constituted the reputed chapelry of Newton, formerly took it in turn in the above order to provide the rushbearing to the chapel on Friday before the Sunday following the 18th of August. The procession was headed by the chapel garland, which was placed in the interior of the chapel, where four beams projected between the windows on the north side, one of which appertained to each township for displaying for four years the garland which had preceded its rushbearing. The garland consisted of a wooden framework several yards in circumference, ornamented with artificial flowerets cut in divers coloured papers, and ornamented either with a tinsel crown or the imitation of a bird conventionally treated. Each township as its turn came round every fourth year fetched out its old garland. On the following or Wakes Sunday the dancers, arrayed in their ribbons, attended the chapel.

In 1725 the Flixton Churchwardens paid 2*s.* 2*d.* for removing the forms and garlands in the church.—(Langton's Hist. of Flixton, 1898, p. 61, with a note from the

In 1778 the bell was rung on receipt of the news of the taking of Philadelphia, and in 1780 there was "ringing for Rodney." Next year a new bell was put up, and 5*s.* 6*d.* was spent in drink on the occasion.

In 1794 half a crown was spent in drink to celebrate the defeat of the French fleet by Admiral Howe.

Up to 1863 the curfew bell was rung, but was then discontinued by order of the Churchwardens.

Besides the Bellringer there was a bellman, and the chapel services were assisted by an "oby" [hautboy], a bassoon, and a bass viol, which required annual repairs.

The services of other choirs were invoked from time to time, and the Accounts record disbursements for "strange singers' lickquar." In 1800 the Blackley singers were paid half a guinea, and in 1803 Berry's [from Bury ?] singers received a guinea and a half.

Ultimately a barrel organ, played by the old parish clerk, was in use. It was deficient in some of the notes, and when the old clerk died no one was able to play on it. In 1837 a new organ cost £90 10*s.*, and in 1849 it was replaced by a better instrument which cost £240.

Part of the Wakes festivities was the Garland Dance, and, after the Dance was over, the Garland was hung up in the Church. The fame of the Stretford Dancers was such that they were part of the attraction at a Benefit performance at the Theatre Royal, Spring Gardens, Manchester, as appears by the following advertisement which appeared in the Manchester Mercury, April 22, 1788 :—"Positively the last Benefit for the benefit of Mr. Maddocks and Mrs. Banks ; 'A laugh and a Cry, etc.;' after which Shakespeare's King Henry the Fourth. Between the play and the farce, 'The Humours of Flixton Wakes,' in which will be introduced Cudgel Playing for a gold-laced Hat, a Race in Sacks for a Holland Shirt, (then a French Duet) ; the whole to conclude with a Sumptuous Snig Pie Feast and Garland Dance by the Lads from Flixton, Urmston, and Stretford."—(Lawson's Hist. of Flixton, p. 91.)

Mr. Fletcher Moss, in his Didsbury, 1890, p. 48, says "at Didsbury the Wakes were held on August fifth, St. Oswald's Day, and the Wakes Sunday was the following

There was a church clock, and its "fettling" and "dressing" became a serious annual charge. Nearly every one in the village tinkered at it, and sent in a bill, but the villagers or the Churchwardens seemed determined not to buy a new one.

In 1772 a charge was made for drawing the Commandments, and in 1785 the painting of the Constables' staves cost 3*s*.

There were feasts at the election of schoolmasters, dinners at the visitations, and now and then sundry items for "drink at the Cock" on undefined "parish business."

Sunday." He adds: "Even in our own time the garlands from the rush-cart were hung on the large central pillar, and I think the flags were put over the Communion Table, where they remained until the next year. In 1813 there is an entry of 'a new rush matt for before the Altar,' showing that rushes were used as late as that date."

CHAPTER II.

MANORIAL AND OTHER LIKE RECORDS.

Stretford Township, as part of the Salford Hundred or Wapentake, was within the jurisdiction of the Wapentake Court, which still survives, in a much statute-altered form, as the Salford Hundred Court of Record. Some of the older Records of this Court are preserved amongst the Duchy of Lancaster documents at the Record Office in Chancery Lane, London.

Within Stretford Township there were two Manors,[1] one of Stretford and the other of Trafford. The latter was the more important. It was held in chief, that is "of the King" as supreme Lord in free and common socage as of his Manor of Salford by fealty and the yearly rent of five shillings.

The Manor of Stretford was of a lower grade, being a sub-manor held of the Massey family as its superior Lords, in free and common socage by fealty and the render yearly of a pair of gloves.

The following references to these Manors are found at century intervals :

In the year 1324 (17 Edward II.), an Inquisitio ad quod damnum was held concerning a proposal by Henry de Trafford to enfeoff Henry, son of Ade, of the Mylne-gate, Manchester, Chaplain, to the use of Henry de Trafford and Margaret his wife. Henry

[1] A manor was not necessarily a "ring-fence" estate, but was often made up of lands scattered in one or more Townships, but in one ownership.

de Trafford was stated to be son of John, son of Henry. The jury declared there would be no harm done to the King by allowing the transaction, and they found that Henry owned the Manors of Trafford and Stretford, which were held of the King [this was not strictly accurate as to Stretford], by the service of five shillings per annum, and performing suit in the County of Lancaster from three weeks to three weeks [at the Courts held every three weeks], and the Manors were worth twenty marks a year, besides the above services.—(Record Office, Calend. ad. q.d. 17 Edw. II., No. 92.)

In 1415 the Chancery Rolls of 2 Henry V. (on 3rd and 8th skins or membranes), state on an Inquisitio post mortem that the Manor of Trafford, with two parts of the town of Trafford and part of the hamlet of Chollerton, belonged to Sir Henry de Trafford at the time of his death.—(Lanc. and Ches. Record Society, vol. viii. p. 325.)

In 1514 a similar Inquest or Enquiry showed in the 5th year of King Henry VIII. that Edmund Trafford held the Manor of Trafford. This is the 51st item recorded in the fourth volume of Inquis. post mortem among the Duchy Records.—(Op. cit., p. 390.)

In 1622 (20 James I.), at the Inquisition taken at Manchester, on October 1st, after the death of Sir Edmund Trafford, late of Trafford, it was recorded that long before his death he was seized in fee of the Manors of Trafford, Stretford, and Barton-upon-Irwell; and that the Manor of Trafford and other the premises in Trafford were held of the King in free and common socage as of his Manor of Salford by fealty and the yearly rent of 5*s.*, and were worth per ann. (clear) 20 marks; and that the Manor of Stretford and other the premises in Stretford were held of the heirs of Geoffrey Massie, Esq., deceased, in free and common socage by fealty and the yearly rent of 1 pair of gloves, and were worth per ann. (clear) £10; and the Manor of Barton-upon-Irwell and other the premises in Barton, Lostocke, Erlam, Hulme, Bromehurst, Dumplington, and Eccles were held of the King as of his Duchy of Lancaster by the 20th part of a Knight's fee, and were worth per ann. (clear) £5.—(Lanc. and Ches. Record Society, xvii., 326-9.)

By the Survey of the Manor of Manchester in 1320 it appears that a Hundred or Wapentake Court for the Hundred of Salford was then held every three weeks (Mamecestre, Chet. Soc., vol. lvi. pp. 274, 293), and that there was then held in the Manor of Manchester every three weeks a Court Baron, to which the lords of ten neighbouring lordships, or mesne manors, or moieties of manors (Childwall 1, Harwood 2, Withington 1, Pilkington 1, Burnill 1, Rumworth 1, Lever 1, Ashton-under-Lyne 1, Worthington 1) owed "suit of court," and were called judges or justiciers of Manchester by custom from of old time.—(Mamecestre, pp. 286, 333.)

Mr. Farrer (Lanc. and Ches. Record Soc., vol. xxxix. p. 12) explains that "in Saxon times the Lancashire Thanes were required to do Bode and Witness whenever the Reeve summoned them. They had to attend at the Court to give evidence when required."

"After the Conquest arose the Courts, held from three weeks to three weeks, at Manchester, etc. At these Courts the free tenants, whether holding by military service, thanage, or other tenure, owed suit, i.e., it was required of them, as one of the conditions of their tenure, that they should attend the Court of the lordship of which they held their lands, to perform the duties of Doomsmen or Judges, as they were variously styled. They were, in fact, jurymen, who, being sworn, heard evidence and gave judgments, dooms, or awards. As each Court required only a specific number of judges, certain manors or estates were charged with the duty of providing these officers."

About 1311 Hamo de Massey held a carucate of land in Trafford by the service of a judge, and Hugh de Trafford held four bovates of land from Hamo, himself performing the service of such judge, and in 1326 he was fined 6*d.* for not attending to serve, as appears by the following record :—

Amongst the Perquisites at the Salford Wapentake Court, held on Saturday next after the Feast of St. Luke the Evangelist (Oct. 18), in the xixth year of King Edward II., 1326, were a fine of vj*d.* imposed on the judge of Stretford for making default in performing his suit of common, and a further fine was imposed upon him of xij*d.* for not acting as judge[1].

At the sitting of that Court on Saturday in the Vigil of the Purification of the Blessed Mary (Feb. 2), in the same year, William de Oldum was fined iiij*d.* for unjustly detaining a debt from Adam de Hulton, and William, the Clerk of Stretford, was fined ij*d.* for detaining a debt from the same Adam.—(Record Office, Court Rolls, General Series, Portfolio 183, No. 22.)

The Court Rolls of the Duchy of Lancaster include some for the Salfordshire Wapentake Courts and Portmotes (in Bundle 79, Nos. 1,029–1,034) for the years 2 and 3, 5 and 6, 6 and 7, 14 and 15, 18 and 19, 21 and 22 Henry VIII. Of these Rolls Nos. 1,029 and 1,032 contain no item relating to Stretford.

Amongst the entries at the Wapentake Court held on Thursday, the Feast of St. Wulfran (Oct. 15), in the 5th year of King Henry VIII. (1514), and continued at nearly every Court down to the Court held on Thursday next before the Nativity of St. John the Baptist (June 24), in the 7th year of King Henry VIII. (1516), is one relating to Richard Barker, of Stretford, who was sued by Ralph Bordemon, of Ardwick, and a case by George Trafford against John Smethurst, of the parish of Oldham, lasted even longer [Roll No. 1,030.]

At the 14th Wapentake Court, held on Thursday next after the Feast of St. Bartholomew the Apostle (Aug. 24), in the 6th year of King Henry VIII. (1515), James Chollerton sued James Henrison, of Chollerton, chaplain, and Ralph Chollerton, of Chollerton, executors of the Testament of Ralph Chollerton, for thirty shillings [No. 1,030].

At the Portmot of Salford, held there on Thursday next after the Feast of the Ascension of our Lord, in the 6th year of King Henry VIII. (1515), before Sir William Molyneux, Steward, the heir of Sir Edmund Trafford was amerced in sixpence for not coming to Court to do his suit [No. 1,030].

At the eighth Court of the Wapentake, held on Thursday next before the Feast of the Invention of the Holy Cross (May 3), in the seventh year of King Henry VIII. (1516), John fforst sued Peter Mosse, of Stretford, for a debt of six shillings [No. 1,031].

At the Wapentake Court, held on Thursday next before the Feast of St. Luke the Evangelist (Oct. 18), in the 18th year of King Henry VIII. (1527), Richard Barlow sued Ralph Mosse, of Stretford, for a debt amounting to seven shillings [No. 1,033].

At the Court, held on Thursday next after the Feast of All Saints (Nov. 1), in the same year, John Gee, of Stretford, sued Robert Gregory, of Hulton, also Roger Horoks, of Westhalghton [No. 1,033].

At the View of Frank Pledge,[1] of the Salfordshire Wapentake, held on Thursday, after the Birth of St. John the Baptist (June 24), in the same year a fine of xij*d.* was imposed on the Townships of Stretford cum Chollerton for non-appearance [No. 1,033].

At the twelfth Salfordshire Wapentake Court, held on Thursday, in the Vigil of St. Mary Magdalen (July 22), in the xxij. year of the reign of King Henry VIII. (1531), Thomas Jacson sued Thomas Smyth, of Stretford, for a debt, and at the fourteenth Court, held on Thursday next before the Feast of the Nativity of the Blessed Mary (Sept. 8), in the xxij. year of Henry VIII. (1531), Thomas Jacson was fined iij*d.* for not appearing against Thomas Smyth [No. 1,034].

[1] An ancient custom by which every freeborn man at the age of 14 (religious persons, clerks, etc., excepted) should give security to be true to the King and his subjects. The man's neighbours became bound that he should be forthcoming when required, and to answer for his default. The Sheriff at the County Court was to take the oaths of young persons as they attained 14 years of age. From the Sheriffs' Courts it passed to Courts Leet, but gradually fell into disuse.

At the View of Frank Pledge for the Wapentake of Salfordshire, held on Thursday in Pentecost week, in the xxij year of the reign of King Henry VIII. (1531), before Sir William Molyneux, Steward, Thomas Richardson and Hugh Gee were fined for not appearing to make presentments in respect of the Township of Stretford with Chollerton [No. 1,034].

STRETFORD COURT BARON.

The Stretford Court Baron Records are not merely interesting in themselves, but are full of quaint terms and words, the exact meaning of some of which has been forgotten. They also reveal the Village Community and the Commonfield System as practised at Stretford. Thus we find the names :—

Barfoot Dole and Barfootol, Barfoothough Dole, Bank Dole, Bayleys or Bailiff Middup, Bailiff's Cliff (indicative of allotments to the Court-Bailiff), Bilamens Dole (indicating an allotment to the Burlawman), Bradleys [Broad-leys] Doal, Bradleys Sixteen Butts, Clerks hey (an allotment to the cleric or priest?), Child and Childer-yards, Common Eye, Common Ing, Common Banks, Davies Dole, The Dole, Half Ackers, Househill Carr Dole, Inglands Mare Dole, Middup Dole, Mill Dole, Miller hey (an allotment to the miller?), Moorefields, Mean (that is, held in common) Edge, Mean Eyes, Mean Lands, New Roods, Round Dole, Stretford Eye, Stretford Meadow, Smithfields (an allotment to the smith ?), Short Butt, Sixteen Butt Doles, Two Swaths, Sweaths, or Swarths, Wall, Woe, or Wooe-Roods. The customary measure of these Doles will be found at the commencement of the List of Trafford Tenancies in 1782, post.

In 1704 the Court ordered "persons having Doles in the Bradleys Sixteen Butts and Mear (Meir, or Mare, possibly in allusion to 'mear-stones' dividing the doles), to sett meare stones in their accustomed places," and next year, "persons having any com'on Ground or Doles in Bradleys Sixteen Butts or Mare not to put down any cattle into the aforesaid, nor whilst there is any two men's corn in any of the aforesaid fields, and after the aforesd corne is carried of [off] ev'ry person having Comon Grounds or Doles are not to exceed four cows the acre pr person so by greater or lesser quantity of lands." In 1708 John Harrison, Jun., was fined for "ploughing up the Byland betwixt Jonathan Tipping half acre and his own." In 1711 the Jury divided the field called the Half Acres, and in 1709 "the Lease Tenants and Owners or farmers of the several Doles, Butts, or parcels of Land in a close or field lying on the further side of the River Mersey called Barfoothough agreed that their shares should be allotted, staked, and meered out," which had, presumably, not been done before. In 1703 Thomas Moss was fined for turning his horses into the Eye before the 29th of September. In 1709 two persons were fined for "overcharging the Common Eye," and Common Trespassers in the Common Eye are frequently mentioned. In 1710 an order was made that "no person turn any cattle down into the Common Eye after the 11th of March," when the land was, no doubt, closed for a hay crop. In 1712 James Greens was fined "for moving part of the Irons bank a second time over, contrary to custom." On March 10, 1713–14, it was ordered that "no person after this date put down any cattle into Stretford Eye," and in November, 1716, and November, 1717, it was further ordered that "no person put down or drive any cattle into Stretford Eye after the 2nd of February next."

In August, 1719, a still more important regulation was made, that "Persons having any ground in the Common Eye are not to put above four cows to an acre to Edgroth [that is Edge-row, or aftermath], to all that is mown before St. Jamestide, nor above two to an acre to their stubble, nor they that mow their corn not above one to an acre" [as it was cut closer to the ground]. In December, 1725, an order was made that "persons turn no cattle into the Common Eye after 1st January" [lest the cattle should tread the grass into mire and injure the future hay crop].

In December, 1729, the Court apparently investigated the responsibility of the villagers for repairing the river embankments, and various witnesses were called. Thomas Chadwick, probably one of the oldest inhabitants, whose memory would extend to 1650 or thereabouts, declared upon oath that "no persons assist in making the Common Banks but those that had Mean (common) Lands in what is commonly called the Mean Eyes, and those every man according to the compass they have in proportion, until about ten or twelve years since they brought into pay all the Inglands below the Stone platt on the right hand [going from the village, i.e., west] of the High Road." The next witness deposed that the Bylawman paid him for making up a bank that sometime since was washed away. Another witness gave similar evidence. John Harrison, of the Toad Lane [his death is noted at the Court held in October, 1701], was the Bylawman, and the witnesses speak of other acts of authority by him, and Mr. Thomas Harrison "deposed that sixty years or longer since [dating back to 1670], the bank in Little Ing or Eye was washed away, and that all the houses below [south of] the chapel paid to the repair thereof, according to the value of their estates." In 1732 the Bylawmen were ordered "to fill up the sloods (cart-ruts) in the Bradleys Doal," and Anne Hampson, Widow, and John Hyde were "to level the sloods in the Bylamens Doal."

In 1782 the Constables were ordered to provide a set of standard weights for the use of the township. In 1785 the Court ordered "that no person shall carry any fire from [thatched] house to [thatched] house uncovered [lest a spark should be blown onto the thatch and cause a conflagration]."

The records make frequent mention of and regulations in respect of Moss Rooms or allotments on the various Mosses for getting turf for fuel, and in 1794 a notice was to be read in the chapel and posted on the chapel door that if any person suffered pigs to ramble about, he would have to pay five shillings for each offence, and eight persons were named on whom the Bailiff was to serve special notice, and each of them was ordered to pay the Bailiff sixpence; and again in 1811 seven persons were fined 6*s.* 8*d.* each for this offence.

The Records of adjoining districts further illustrate these customs. In May, 1633, the Urmston Halmot records mention that Henry Renshaw was amerced or fined 6*s.* 8*d.* "for plowing up a byland, being a mear between his ground and William Renshaw's ground in the meanfield," and it was also recorded that it was proved on oath "that there ought every other year to be a footway over the head end of Gee's Wheattye, and every other year through James Gregory's Warth," which indicates some rotation of use of the land for crops. The Urmston Records also contain the following minutes.:—

1638, Ap. 26, "Mr. Thos. Erlam must repair his Bank in the meane meadow." 1641, May 20, "John Heywood, al's Richards, for cutting a watercourse over Henry Mosse, his Hadlant, and letting his water into y^e^ said Henry Mosse's feild, is by y^e^ Jurie amercied in iij*s.* 4*d.*" 1641, Nov. 25, "If Peter Newton doe from henceforth give anie Freeholder leave to goe over Koxe Hadland Butte they amercie him for evrie time so offending to pay iij*s.* iiij*d.*"

On the north side of the old course of the River Irwell, near Boysnope, below Sticking Lock, and to the east of the Boyle Brook, there was, in the bend of the river, a field which was called in 1782 the Mean (that is, common) Wheat Croft, which was held in doles or lots, particulars and customary measurements of which are thus given in the Survey of the Trafford Estates:—

Otho Cook's heirs, Widow Derbyshire, and Mr. Jonathan Barrow also owned doles in the same field. These pieces lay in the following order, starting from the east westwards: W. Barrow, Otho Cook's heirs, John Heywood or Howard, James Wright, W. Barrow, John Heywood, Widow Derbyshire, James Wright. The field to the north was called Three Wheat Crofts, and belonged to Jonathan Barrow. The field to the east belonged to James Irlam, and its shape indicated that it also had at one time been held in doles.

Of the Stretford Court Baron[1] there are two volumes of Proceedings extant, namely, from 1700 to 1733 inclusive, and from 1782 to 1872 inclusive. The volume for the intermediate period, 1733–1782, is missing. The first extant volume contains entries showing that there had been at one time an earlier volume.

The existence of this earlier volume is corroborated by the Urmston Manor Court Book, which covers the period 1613 to 1699 inclusive, and from which the following entries have been gleaned as relating to Stretford, or elucidating entries or names which appear in the Stretford volumes.

An old Court Book of the Manor of Sale, co. Chester, from 1618 to 1623, "wretchedly written, and kept by William Williamson, Steward of the Court," is preserved amongst the ancient charters and deeds at High Legh, Cheshire (Journ. Chester Archæol. Soc., 1886). It may contain some entries bearing on Stretford, but I have not been able to obtain access to it.

[1] At a Court Baron all those that held their lands of the Lord of the Manor had to be present, and at least two must be freeholders [life tenants answered this description], or it was not a Court Baron. It is a Court which every Lord of a Manor hath within his own precincts, and must be held on some part of the Manor.

URMSTON HALMOT RECORDS RELATING TO STRETFORD.

At the Urmston Halmot[1] on October 17, 1620, the Jury presented that there had been an affray between Thomas Newton, junior [Thomas Newton, senior, was on the jury; John Newton, gentleman, was recorded as a free tenant, and William Newton as an inhabitant], and John Syddall, of Stretford, and blood was drawn on and upon each of them, and they were fined 6*s.* 8*d.* each.

On October 23, 1621. Thomas Gee was fined vi*d.* for not making his gate in the Pighooe Lane,[2] and Henry ffilmer and John Newton were presented for not "scowringe and slauseinge" their watercourses. George Heawoodd was fined xij*d.* for not makinge his "yord in y^e^ Broads." On May 16, 1622, Roger ffylds and Robarte Tounge, of Maunton, within the p'ishe of Eccles, were fined "iij*s.* iiij*d.* a peece for paringe and cuttinge of the soyle of o^r^ Mr. and landlord, John Hyde, Esquire, in the Pighye Lane."

Oct. 15, 1624. Thomas Harison al's Salter was fined vj*d.* "for non-appearance att this Courte," and again on Apr. 25, 1625.

On April, 25, 1626, Robert Smith was "presented ten'nte to doe suit of Court for Thomas Harison," and it was "ordered that the dytch end lyeinge betweene Lostock and [Davy] Hulme of the one pte and Vrmeston of the other shal bee from tyme to tyme scowred, dyched, and guttered by the ten'nts and occupyers of the Land adjoyninge to the same watercourse in Vrmeston, vnder the paine of euerie default iij*s.* iiij*d.*"

Oct. 16, 1626. "Henrie Gregorie, for not scowringe his watercourse in the Childerearth, is amercied in iij*s.* iiij*d.*," and it was ordered that "from henceforth noe watercourse shal bee scowred meane [that is, in common or jointly], but that euerie one shall haue his comon concourses of water scleused, scowred, and made sufficient vppon his and theire own p'per costs and charges, and soe from tyme to tyme kepte before the yearelie feaste daie of thannunciacon, vnder the paine of euerie default iij*s.* iiij*d.*"

Dial. Soc.) gives Hayment, s. a fence or boundary. In the Urmston Halmot Book instances occur of "Ring yate" in 1635, "Hayment" in 1640, and "Rendyard" in 1682, but the word is generally spelt "Ringyard." Mr. Farrer (Court Rolls of the Honour of Clitheroe, vol. i. p. 60 n) says this word [Renghard, Rengyorde, Ryngyord] seems to be derived from the Gothic Ren, a stake, and gard an enclosure or yard. Ren also meant, says Mr. Farrer, a strip of land left for a road through cultivated land. . . Ren-gard was a temporary fence, probably made with stakes and moveable crossbars, somewhat similar to a certain kind of heavy fence now more especially used for railway fences. It was probably erected upon a "reean," "roone," or uncultivated strip of land, in order to fence off commonable meadow or stubble from growing crops of either grain or grass, and was made moveable in order that, when the crops had been cut and harvested, the stubble or cleared meadow might then be thrown open to the adjoining common again for the pasturage of the village cattle. The ren-gard was put up again between mid-March and mid-April. In the Halmote held at Colne, April 29, 1496 (op. cit., p. 229) a byelaw was recorded that "whoso has his ryng yorde not mad by myd April sall lose ij*s.*" A Byrelaw of Extwi-

In a further note (op. cit., p. 108), Mr. Farrer adds: The village cattle might pasture upon the eddish or etch, after Lammas Day in the case of meadow land, or after harvest in the case of arable land, until seed time in the following spring, when the ring-yards were set up again, and the cattle turned on to the common.

On May 30, 1530, Thomas Talior was fined "for not making his fences called Reng yorde round about Chatburne townfield."—(Op. cit., p. 91.)

In Mr. Farrer's volume instances of Ringyards occur in several places, namely, Bredde Yngs, p. 60; Grene Raw, pp. 64, 132; Chatburn, pp. 91, 93, 206; More Dyke, pp. 132, 158; Penhulton, p. 198; and Colne, p. 228; ranging in date from 1495 to 1563.

"and so descending into the aforesaid le Ringherd del Shorteys" (Manchester Collectanea, vol. i., Chet. Soc., vol. lxviii. p. 74). Addy's Sheffield Glossary (English Dialect Society, 1888, p. 329) gives "Ring-hedge, the hedge which divided the enclosed fields or the ploughed strips from the commons," and quotes instances from the Holmesfield Court Rolls of 1595, 1597, and 1609, and from Harrison's Survey of the Manor of Sheffield in 1637. Thomas Mower, of New Mills (in Manchester City News N. and Q., No. 8,320, March 18, 1899), states that according to an old manuscript book in his possession, written about 105 years ago [1794], the ring fence of the hamlet of Ollersitt was portioned out amongst the estate tenants. A Lease dated 1637 recites that the farmers of the lands in Little Hulton, co. Lancaster, "have ever for the tyme whereof the memory of man is not to the contrary made, vpheld, and mainteyned, all the yords and fence betwixt the same landes and the landes now the demesne landes of said Thomas, son of Adam Mort." Another lease in 1652 speaks of "hedges, ditches, yordings, and fences"; again, in 1687, "y^e^ yords, fences, and hedges"; and in 1701 a lease of "a messuage and yords and ringotts," contained a covenant to "make the accustomed fence or haymente lying to the demesne lands of Richard Mort."

STRETFORD COURT BARON.

The first volume of proceedings of the Stretford Court Baron is folio size, bound in parchment, and twenty-seven leaves (one leaf has been cut out) are left blank between the two sections into which the book is divided, that is, one set of entries at one end of the book relating to Manorial matters and offences, and the other set at the other end recording the issues or actions tried between parties, either between the Lord of the Manor and his tenants, or between debtor and creditor, or trespassee and trespasser. The first section occupies 356 pages, the second section occupies 121 pages, making together 477 pages.

It has been deemed convenient to follow the same subdivision in the following extracts.

Section I. From October 9, 1700, to March 12, 1732–3.

Halliwell's Provincial Glossary gives "Hebble, a narrow short plank bridge. Yorkshire; see Hallamshire Glossary, p. 113." So too Thoresby's Letter to Ray, Leeds, 1703. gives "Hebble, a narrow, short, plank bridge (English Dialect Soc. B 17)." Marshall's Rural Economy, 1788 (English Dialect Society, Reprinted Glossaries), gives "Hebble, the rail of a wooden bridge." Hutton's Tour to the Caves in the W. Riding of Yorkshire, 1781, gives "Hebble-tree, the hand-rail of a footbridge" (English Dialect Society B i). Robinson's Whitby Glossary, 1876, has "Hebble, the wooden hand-rail of a plank bridge over a brook." Peacock's Manley and Corringham Glossary (North Lincolnshire), published by the English Dialect Society, quotes (in Latin) from the Botterford Manor Records in 1563, "No one shall go with a waggon over the hebbels" (super le hebbels), and says the word is obsolete.

The above earlier extracts given in extenso and subsequent abstracts will serve to show the variety of subjects dealt with by the Court and the valuable genealogical and topographical information to be gleaned from the Court Books, but space permits only of further selections which are specially interesting as naming or identifying localities or persons. Copies of eleven Estate Maps are given, they were made on vellum about 1780, by Mr. Bennett (Surveyor to Mr. Trafford), whose son was the immediate predecessor of the present holder of that office, Mr. John Bowden, C.E., to whom, and to Mr. F. Ellis, Steward of the de Trafford Estates, I owe many thanks for information and privileges accorded. The Maps will give great assistance towards identifying places and persons.

CHAPTER III.

TRAFFORD TENANCIES, 1782.

In place of the missing intervening volume of the Court Baron Records the following extracts are given, which show in detail the holdings in Stretford in 1782. They are taken from "A Survey with maps of the townships of Barton, Stretford, Hough, Chorley, and Morley, in the counties of Lancaster and Chester, belonging to John Trafford, Esq^re." "Surveyed by Wm. Bennet, 1782."

The first eleven pages of this folio volume contain an "Abstract of the Book" arranged in columns :—

The yearly value is not stated.

For Barton there are 95 entries; followed by Irlam 23 entries; Dumplington 16; Croft 14; Davyhulme 11; Lostock 16; Bentlanes 2; Bromyhurst 5; Stretford 127; Wilmslow 142.

The rest of the book after the first eleven pages contains more detailed Lists with plans on parchment. The Stretford portion of the "Abstract" has not been copied as it is only a summary of the detailed portion which begins on folio 50 and ends on folio 85.

The plans for the Stretford portion are separately numbered from I to XI.

The Stretford set of Plans together with the Frontispiece have been copied by photography for this volume. A careful examination of the Frontispiece and Plan No. 1 leads to the conclusion that the former gives a view of the Great Barn and other farm buildings belonging to Trafford Old Hall, with the moat in the foreground on the right. A man is crouching with a gun amongst the bushes in the centre of the foreground, as if about to shoot at a heron which is fishing in the moat, along the margin of which reeds are growing.

Plans iv. and vi. contain microscopic drawings of the Cross, with the stocks at its foot on the north or Manchester side. Plans iii. and viii. give the Cross without the stocks, and Plan v. which deals with the village omits both.

Alterations which were from time to time made in the tenancies have been noted in pencil on the Lists, and some alterations in the division of the fields have also been indicated on the Plans. These memoranda have been grouped together for the purposes of this volume in a separate column.

The columns of the original list are: No. of Plan; Number on Plan; The Premises; Contents in Statute Measure; Value per Acre; Yearly Value; Contents in Customary Measure. The value per acre and yearly value have never been inserted and those columns are therefore here omitted, as also the Customary measure. To facilitate the study of the Dole system, however, the following entries are grouped together with the customary measure quoted, as that was the basis upon which the division was originally made.

John Cockran to repair the fence between Richd. Wharf's land part of the Hullard Hall Estate and land part of Old Trafford Estate in J. C.'s occupation called Nine Pits field, in length 171 yards. [Liability being denied the order was suspended till the trial of an action on the subject, see Footnote.[2]]

[1] This footroad ran from Moss lane near Brooks' Bar to Chester road near Pomona, across the 92nd Trafford Tenement then occupied by Thomas Baxter.

[2] The case was tried at the thirteenth County Court of Thomas Greene, Esq., Sheriff, at Manchester, January 29, 1824, and appears on the notes of the Judge or Assessor (John Addison, Esq., of Preston, barrister-at-law) thus:—Chas. McNiven, Esq., v. Richard Wharf and Nathl. Mellor. Replevin. Mr. Owen opened the pleadings. Declaration, taking goods, 20l.; plea 1, not guilty; 2, avow: damage feasant; Plea, Deft. liable to repair a fence; Reply, not liable. Mr. Law for Plt.

John Pooley: I live about ¼ of a mile from locus in quo. There is a footpath in Plt's field adjoining Defts'. I occupied Dfts' field above 20 years ago. I objected to repair the fence betwn the closes at the time, but I repaired it. The ditch was in the field I occupied, and therefore I fancied I was not bound to repair it. I applied to my landlord Mr. Walker who is also landlord of Wharf and is now dead and he told 12 Nov., 1823. Mr. Richard Pearson, foreman.

Edwd. Hancock and Joseph Lowe to open the ditch from Mr. Chas. Walker's land [Longford Hall] to Mrs. Sarah Whitelegg's land, 100 yards.

Parker Raingill [and others] to scour the Brook running between a place called The Acqueduct to the estate of Joshua Ryle.

Adjourned to the house of Thos. Hulme [one of the jurors] the Bull and Punch Bowl in S. on Friday, November 21, at ten.

21 Nov. 1823. Thos. Hulme and this time Thos. Hazzlehurst [of the Cock] were on the jury.

23 Apr., 1824. At the house of Joseph Brundrit the Trafford Arms in S.

me he was bound to repair it, and I did repair it. Mr. McNiven's fr. [father] occupied the other close then. Cross-examined : I repaired it three or four times. Re-examined : The land is higher on Mr. McNiven's side, so much so as to make it inconvenient to make a ditch on that side.

Caleb Joddrell : Lived in the neighbourhood all my life. Walker occupied it 36 yrs. ago, and hedged and ditched the fence. He occupied Wharf's close. The ditch is on Wharf's side after it gets past the Handley Mea[dow]. McNiven's land is the higher. Horsfield was tenant afterwards, 20 yrs. or 18 yrs. ago. Repaired it for him; set wicks in it. Horsfield occupied Wharf's field. Crowther aft'ds repaired it for Wharf, 6 yrs. ago. Cross-exam'd : Walker held it a few years, Horsfield sev[l].

James Holt : Known the fence 40 years; field Walker's; then he set it to different people. Walker repaired the fence 30 yrs. ago. I did it for him many a time. Walker's son had it after the old fellow. I repaired it for his son too. Horsefield had it 9 or 10 yrs. ago. I was employed by him to repair it, and for Mr. Shelmerdine, who was at one time ten[t]. I have ditched it 3 or 4 times, and hedged 2 or 3 times; always for the occupier of Handley Meadow. Crowther repaired it 9 or 10 yrs. ago for Horsefield, and since for Wharf. Cross-exam'd : Crowther was once a serv[t] of Mr. McNiven. He was not a serv[t] of McN. when he was repairing the fence.

Rich[d] Cookson : John Wood occupied the farm 50 years ago ; Edmd. Newton after him.

William Taylor : Mr. Horsefield occupied the Handley Meadow, and paid me for repairing the fence. Joddrell and Holt were with me. Quicks set there.

John Turner : Crowther repaired the fence for Mr. Rangle [Raingill?] who was ten[t] of Handley Meadow. The fence was out of repair and I went with a message, and the next day Horsefield's people repaired the fence. I was living with McNiven when I went with the message to Horsefield's men. Cross-exam'd : I lived 7 yrs. with McNiven. He never repaired it during that time. It is 10 yrs. ago.

Mr. Peter Jackson foreman.

12 Nov. '24. Moss Reevers for Stretford Moss [only] Mr. Peter Jackson and Mr. John Smith.

John Moss to open the ditch between his close called the Fleaths and Thos. Raingill's New Roods.

10 Apr., 1826. At the House of Thos. Tattersall the Dog and Partridge in S.

Mr. Joseph Hampson, Foreman.

James Williamson: Have known the fence 30 yrs.; was servt with McN. 10 yrs. ago. It was never repaired by me, and I did all the fencing for McN. for 5 yrs. It was repd by the Hullart Hall people.

Jonathan Brettargh: Was steward to Mr. Trafford; became so in 1784; knew Hullart Hall farm. The fence always belonged to Mr. Walker to the best of my knowledge. Walker spoke to me upon the subjt very soon after he came in to possession abt 30 years ago. He asked to whom the fence belonged. I told him it belonged to him. I never heard it disputed. It was acquiesced in till lately. Cross-exam'd: I think Clayton Wright was not present during the conv[ersation]. I think there was nobody else there. It was on the road.

Sarah Crowther: Widow of Jas. Crowther, who repaired the fence, and Wharf paid him. I recd the money myself.

Wm. Pearce objected to being one of the bail.

— Williams: The cattle taken were 2 milch cows; were got back next day, it was 9 or 10 in the morning when taken, and they were got back in the afternoon. Two were taken a second time. Five a third time. Cross-exam'd: There might be a dozen of my master's cattle in Wharf's field. There were 40 of cattle in the field of my master, There might be a dozen and a half in Wharf's field. The fields were eddish.

For the Deft.

Mary Crowther: I am 80, turned. I lived with Mr. McNiven a great number of years. Sometimes I looked after the cows. I remember them getting into Horsefield's field, and telling Mr. McNiven of it. He directed James Crowther to take thorns, and make the gap up. The gap was made up with the thorns. The cattle were very unlucky, and got over the fence sevl times. I have seen them do it above once. I never sd. anything to Mr. McN. but that once.

Byelawmen and Moss Reevers as before.

Saml. Hatton to take up and lay half a yard lower a plat across the road leading to a field called Childerhey in Saml. Renshaw's occupation.

Moss Reevers, Ernerths Moss, Mr. Wm. Johnson and Mr. Jos. Lowe: Stretford Moss, Mr. John Smith.

12 Nov., 1827. Jas. Rose, foreman.

Peter Hunt: Worked for Mr. McN. 9 yrs.; left him 8 yrs. ago; was employed in hedging, ditching, and mowing. The fence was broken down, and I have made it good sevl. times, by the late Mr. McNiven's order. I dare say a dozen times. I have known other people do it for Hullart Hall. Both sides repaired it. There was never no difference then. They were neighbourly. Cross-exam'd: I used to stick old stuff in; never knew new wickwood put in. I never but made a gap up with thorns. Ditch was scoured some times but I never scoured it.

Joseph Axon: I was a servt of Mr. McN. abt 10 yrs. ago, to look after the beasts. I was employed about 4 mo.; The fence was out of repair, and the beasts got over. I was sent to make up the fence, where the cattle had got over. I did it 3 or 4 times.

James Wroe: Was a workman to Plt's agent, 6 years nearly; left 1821: fence was often down. I have made several gaps up with thorns, twice over; never ditched it; two or three gaps.

Thomas Broughton: has a garden at Hullart Hall; have seen the fence out of repair often. I recollect a cartload of thorns coming, and some young firs [furze?] brought by Thos. Crowther, who lived at McNiven's. James Crowther did it. James did not live at Mr. McN.'s.

James Renshaw: Worked for Mr. McN. 9 years. When the cattle got in we made up the fence. I cannot say I ever had a spade in that ditch; made up the gaps with thorns, and felled other wood for it.

Thomas Howard: Going of 80. I have been at the hedging of the fence. I put two rails in in Worthington's time; never in McN.'s time. Cross-exam'd: It was a workman of Worthington's that put the rail in.

William Gresley: I was employed by James Crowther. I helped him to ditch. He told me he was ditching for McN. McN. came and sd. "Crowther! do it well," and gave 1s. to spend; 20 years ago. Cross-exam'd: Crowther paid me. Walker was tenant then.

13 Oct., 1862, next Court, at Dog and Partridge and by adjournment at the Cock Inn on 14th Oct. and by adjournment at Dog and Partridge on 16th October before Jas. Fred^{c} Beever Gentleman one of the Stewards for the purpose of walking the Manor boundaries.

Mr. Jas. Moore, Foreman.

Such walking on the first of the two first days was commenced at the east side of Throstle Nest Weir on the River Irwell and continued [westwardly and southwardly] along the boundary line of the Township of Stretford to the Township boundary stone near Crossford Bridge and on the second of the same days was continued from the same boundary stone [eastwardly and northwardly] along the boundary line of the said Township to the east side of Throstle Nest Weir where the walking was commenced, and on the third day the Jurors examined two Maps [of the Ordnance Survey] one of which showed the entire area of the Manor by red colour and the other the boundary between the Manor and Hulme Township on a larger scale and found them correct.

Tradition says that on the first day as they passed along the side of one of the Moss Gutters, Mr. Beever fell in through a sly lurch by the burly farmer by whose side he was walking.

The next and last Court was on 18 April, 1872, at Wm. Henry Mann's Old Cock Inn before Mr. Ayre and Mr. Beever, Stewards. Mr. William Bennet was still Bailiff. Mr. James Moore was again the foreman and the twelve other Jurors were : John Brundrit, Herbert Bannister, Wm. Edwards, Jas. Seddon, John Cain, Wm. Bowker, John Seddon, Osbourne Halliwell, John Stott, Wm. Wakefield, Thos. Broady, and Thos. Warburton.

The only business, besides dining, was the appointment of Byelawmen : Messrs. John Brundrit, Peter Chadwick, Thos. Warburton, and John Stott.

Moss Reever for Stretford Moss, Mr. William Bowker; for Erneth's Moss, Messrs. Thos. Warburton, Herbt. Bannister.

Affearers: Messrs. Jas. Moore and John Cain.

This ends the last page of the second extant folio volume. A fuller report of this last Court appeared in the Manchester Guardian on April 19, 1872.

The Highway Act, 1835, The Parish Constables Act, 1842 (5 and 6 Vict. c. 109) and the Public Health Act, 1848, and its successors have superseded many of the functions of the Court, and it has in consequence fallen into disuse.

CHAPTER V.

VESTRY MINUTES.

THOMAS WALKER (the younger) M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, Barrister-at-law, and one of the Police Magistrates of the Metropolis, whose home was at Longford House, Stretford, and concerning whom further mention will be made in the chapter on Persons (post), published in 1826, a Treatise on the Nature, Extent, and Effects of Pauperism (the 2nd edition, 1831, is in the Manchester Free Library in a volume lettered "Poor Laws") and on page 68 of his Weekly Paper called The Original in 1835,[1] he makes the following quotation from his Treatise :—

> In August, 1817, an opportunity occurred to me of commencing an experiment on the subject of pauperism in the township of Stretford in the parish of Manchester, a district partly manufacturing but principally agricultural and containing about 2000 acres of land and as many inhabitants.
> I began by procuring the adoption of somewhat the same plan as Mr. Sturges Bourne's Select Vestry not then legalised—a suggestion of the neighbouring magistrate, Ralph Wright, Esq., whom I consulted in the first instance, and whose co-operation, as well as that of the most respectable inhabitants, I uniformly met with, during a residence at intervals of three years and a half. I soon found that the magistrates as usual had no confidence in the overseers, to the great gain of the paupers, whose appeals from the overseers to the magistrates were incessant.

[1] The Original was republished in 1874 in 2 vols., edited by Blanchard Jerrold, with a portrait of Thomas Walker the Elder, as frontispiece to vol. i., and particulars of his life (pp. 1–116) and of the life of Thomas Walker the younger (pp. 119–158). See also Mr. C. W. Sutton's article on Mr. Walker in the Dictionary of National Biography.

I found that the paupers were insolent in the extreme to the farmers, and in great measure their masters—that the paupers were combined together to get as much from the rates as possible, and that they practised all sorts of tricks and impositions for that purpose— that the industrious labourers were discouraged—the well disposed inhabitants afraid, or persuaded that it was in vain to interfere—and every individual driven to do the best he could for himself or his connexions at the general expense.

For some time the paupers tried every art to deceive or tire me out, and some of the rate-payers who were driven from the management opposed me in secret; but the good effects of the new system became so apparent, both as to economy and good order, that opposition grew less and less, and at last suddenly and entirely ceased.

I spent almost my whole time for some months in visiting the labouring classes—in making myself master of their habits—in explaining to them the causes of their distress—and in enforcing, as occasions arose, the doctrines which Mr. Malthus himself laid down (not those ignorantly attributed to him), which I took care to put in the most familiar and pointed manner I was able, and I was surprised to see the effect generally produced— it was as if a new light had broken in upon my hearers. By degrees I gained their confidence—they constantly applied to me to settle their disputes, or for legal advice, or for assistance in whatever difficulties they found themselves; and as I was frequently able to serve them, I found that circumstance of great advantage in carrying into execution any measure of severity or privation.

With respect to former abuses in the management, I made it a rule never to look back, but held that neglect on one side and imposition on the other had balanced the account, and that it would be better to look only to the future.

I found this plan attended with the best effects. Those who had profited by abuse were glad to escape so easily. Those who earnestly wished for what was right were not revolted by any appearance of harshness; and instead of wrangling about the past, everything went on well for the present, and not one retrograde movement was made.

A few hours in a week soon became sufficient to do all the business, and at last a trifling superintendence was alone necessary. Information came to me from all quarters—the combination amongst the paupers was dissolved—appeals to the magistrates, whose unvaried support I experienced, entirely ceased—the rates were considerably diminished—the labourers depended more upon themselves, and were generally better off, and what was most important, new principles were gaining ground.

The amount of money paid to the poor during the years of my occasional superintendence, exclusive of the maintenance of those in the workhouse and the expense of a few articles of clothing, was as follows :—

From March,	1817,	to March,	1818	...	£812 16	6
,,	1818,	,,	1819	...	537 19	7½
,,	1819,	,,	1820	...	489 12	6
,,	1820,	,,	1821	...	368 4	0

When I first interfered in August, 1817, it was the practice to admit families into the workhouse; at the time my interference ceased the number of inmates was reduced to eight, viz: six aged persons and two young women, one of the latter half idiotic, and the other labouring under severe disease. Three of the old men broke stones for the roads, and the idiotic girl maintained herself. In fact a workhouse was become quite unnecessary.

Before the commencement of the alteration of the system, the expenses of pauperism were rapidly increasing, and the reduction was solely owing to that species of amendment in management, which may be put in practice under any circumstances.

At page 176 he further says:—"In 1817 when I commenced my enquiries into the habits of the weavers in [Stretford] one of the townships of the parish of Manchester, I learnt that embezzlement had there been a habit long before the invention of power-looms, or the consequent fall of wages, and that sometimes it had increased to such a pitch as to make the masters resolve not to give out any material at all in the place, whereby every loom was at a stand. By degrees employment was again given, and by degrees the same abuse recurred. During the want of work the poor's rates were the never-failing resource, and in this, as in many other instances, furnished a constant encouragement to moral debasement; though the truth might never come to the ears of those who lived in the midst of these malpractices." He adds on page 178, "In the year 1817 I endeavoured to dissuade the weavers in my then neighbourhood [Stretford] from bringing up their children to their own calling, being convinced that power-looms would eventually supersede handlooms."

In 1831 Mr. Walker remarked further, "The last opportunity I had of seeing the effect of my system was in September, 1828, when I made the following extract from the Poor's Books:—

May, 1817.	Monthly payments to regular poor				£68	3	6
1818.	„	„	„	„	33	12	0
1827.	„	„	„	„	15	2	0
1828.	„	„	„	„	13	10	0

In June, 1835, he added, "In April, 1835, I attended a town's meeting for half an hour, after a lapse of fourteen years, and found the business carried on just as when I was there before; and I learnt it was in contemplation to abandon the workhouse on the 21st of this month as useless."

The inhabitants were so pleased with the results of his efforts that on August 27, 1822, they presented to him through Mr. William Sergeant ("for many years Solicitor to the town of Manchester and the principal inhabitants of the township of Stretford") a handsome silver cup inscribed "A tribute of gratitude, Presented to Thomas Walker, Esq., By the inhabitants of Stretford; 1822."

When Mr. Walker first began his experiments in 1817 the Poor Law Acts in force were the 43 Elizabeth, 9 Geo. I., and 36 Geo. III. Shortly afterwards by Sturges Bourne's Act, 59 George III., cap. 12, a Select Vestry was called into existence, consisting of the clergymen, churchwardens, and overseers for the time being, with not more than twenty nor less than five substantial householders or occupiers elected annually by the ratepayers at large. On August 16, 1834, 4 & 5 Will. IV., cap. 76, entitled "An Act for the Amendment and better Administration of the Laws relating to the Poor in England and Wales," received the Royal assent, and established the Poor Law Board. Under this Act Unions of Parishes were formed with a Common Workhouse, and various powers formerly vested in Justices of the Peace respecting outdoor relief were repealed, but the Justices were to be ex-officio Guardians.

This Act was to some extent the outcome of a pamphlet by Mr. Walker, entitled, "Suggestions for a Constitutional and Efficient reform in Parochial Government," London, 1834. In it he advocated the principles of Self government by small communities and a permanent Board of Commissioners to frame constitutions for all parishes. These Constitutions were to be alterable from time to time; parishes were to be divided into Wards, and the pamphlet generally foreshadows the Local Boards and District Councils of later date.

The circumstances which led to the separation of the Stretford township from the Chorlton Union and the formation of the Barton-upon-Irwell Union are set forth in the Report which the late Mr. Henry Whitworth[1] as Clerk to the Barton Guardians presented to that Board on December 23, 1874, on the completion of the first quarter of a century from its formation.

The Report contains 63 pages, and explains that the Poor Law Commissioners under the Poor Law Amendment Act 4 & 5 Wm. IV., cap. 76 made an Order dated January 14, 1837, forming the Chorlton Union including Stretford Township, and by a subsequent Order dated January 28, 1841, annexed the Townships of Barton-upon-Irwell, Flixton, and Urmston to that Union. In 1848 the Guardians (in reply to a letter from Mr. Holbrook Gaskell, of Nasmyth, Gaskell & Co., Patricroft, setting forth a number of grounds for severance), stated that the four Townships of Stretford, Barton, Flixton, and Urmston "were notoriously the worst managed, most pauperised, and most demoralised districts in the whole Union, particularly Stretford, and that it entailed an immense amount of labour and exertion to break up that system of hereditary pauperism which had so long and so extensively existed." The Chorlton Guardians in January, 1849, wished to send a deputation to the Poor Law Board to oppose any severance, particularly as to the Township of Stretford, but the Poor Law Board declined to receive the deputation, and replied that a new Union would be formed. Accordingly on October 9, 1849, the four Townships, with those of Worsley and Clifton, were by Order created a new Union. George Bannister and Alexander Oliver were the first Guardians for Stretford on the new Board, and Mr. Holbrook Gaskell was the first Chairman, followed in April, 1850, by Francis Spencer, of Patricroft, and in April, 1851, by George Bannister, of Stretford.

[1] Mr. Henry Whitworth died Jan. 2, 1894. He was the first Clerk to the Stretford Local Board of Health. He was succeeded by his son Frank, who in turn was succeeded by George H. Abrahams. Another son, Alfred Henry, was appointed Secretary to the Manchester Ship Canal Company, and a third son, John W., succeeded to the office of Clerk to the Barton Guardians. An appropriate notice of Mr. Whitworth and of his public services is contained in the fifth volume of Manchester Faces and Places, p. 89, and the chapter on Persons in vol. iii. (post) contains a short account of his life.

In 1851 Alex^r. Oliver was replaced as Guardian by Charles Wolstenholme, and in 1853 both Bannister and Wolstenholme were replaced by Wm. Bowker and Samuel Buckley, who continued in office till 1863, when they gave way to James Kelsall and Luke Turner.

In 1864 the number of Guardians for Stretford was raised to three, and Matthew Brougham [Wm. John Hatton refused to serve], Jas. Kelsall, and John Kelsall were elected. In 1866 Jas. Kelsall resigned, and the three members elected were Matth. Brougham, Chas. Affleck, and John Farrington, and for the next year John Heywood, John Farrington, and John Wright, who were joined in 1868 by William Ogden, when the number was raised to four.

Charles James Stanley Walker, of Longford, brother of Thomas Walker, was one of the six ex officio Guardians resident within the Union at its formation, and in 1874 Charles Hilditch Rickards, of Old Trafford, and John Rylands, of Longford, were two out of ten. Sir Thos. Joseph de Trafford and Sir Humphrey de Trafford were likewise ex officio Guardians, but were deemed resident at Barton, Trafford Hall being in that Township.

The first medical officer for the Stretford District, which included Urmston and Flixton, was Dr. George Stevenson, of Stretford, whose successors were Mr. Beeston, in 1851, Mr. Thos. Bird, in 1854, and Mr. Henry Adye, in 1857, on whose death in 1868 Mr. James Affleck was appointed, and in 1872 the Stretford District was limited to the Township. In 1874 Mr. Affleck resigned, and was succeeded by Mr. J. B. Brierley.

After the Act for the Registration of Births, Deaths, and Marriages came into force, Mr. Henry Thomas Bagshaw was appointed the first Registrar for the Stretford Sub-District, and held the office till June 2, 1848, when Mr. George Stevenson, Surgeon, was appointed, and resigning in 1868, was succeeded by Mr. John Rogers.

The offices of Assistant Overseer and Collector of Poor Rate for Stretford were formerly joint, and have been held by James Bradshaw, 1850-9, Edward Green, 1860-1, and William T. Crippin, 1861-1873. In 1873 the offices were divided, and Geo. Shaw was appointed Assistant Overseer, and held that office until his death, Oct. 18, 1900, and A. H. Allen was appointed Collector of Poor's Rate.

The following notes and extracts from the Minute Book of the Vestry Meetings are of interest as showing the gradual change in the mode of regulating the Township affairs, and the usurpation of some of the functions of the Manor Court, which were further superseded under the Public Health and Local Government Acts.

The Vestry Meetings, even those for the relief of paupers, were held at Licensed Houses, the two houses most patronised being the Trafford Arms and the Dog and Partridge. Some of the meetings commenced in the Vestry at the Church, and were adjourned to the favoured house ; one was held at the National School, and several at the Stretford Town Hall, after its erection.

The earlier entries respecting relief to paupers show that Nicknames were necessary to distinguish individuals, hence "Daniel Robinson (alias Dan Button)," "Widow Royle (Cunney)," "Widow Hampson (Rodney)."

The Poor Rate for Stretford was in 1836 2s. in the £, in 1858 10d., and in 1899 1s. 3d.
